Having problems with Internet Explorer Home Page?

If you have a new PC, Internet Explorer probably opens on the manufacturer's Web site. If you haven't changed that already, navigate to the home page you want, click Tools, Internet Options, and in the 'Home page' box on the General tab, click Use Current. Occasionally, IE may open to a Microsoft page to inform you of a critical update. If clicking the Home button returns you to the expected place, everything is fine. Some programs or Web sites change your home page. (You may find a warning about the change in the fine print of a license agreement.) Follow the procedure above to switch it back; then reboot to confirm that the change has taken effect. If the unwanted page returns, some piece of scummy software is resetting the home page every time you start Windows. Most evil applications of this type can be cut off by one of two free programs: Ad-aware or Spybot Search and Destroy.

Dear editor : Adding to the Brian Sarre story ...

As a rider to last week's article, during the five years my son, David, played junior football the Walpole Warriors never lost one game, let alone a championship.

Letters always welcome

Letters to the Editor are always welcome at the Walpole Weekly. We reserve the right to refuse if there is something in the letter the Management Committee thinks is objectionable or libelous, but that is something we have seldom had to do. We also welcome longer articles about local topics of interest. And of course, we always welcome pictures of local events and activities.

FOOD FOR THE JOURNEY

"RAISE YOUR HEADS"

"Fly not, cowards and vile beings, for it is a single knight that attacks you." So shouted Don Quixote as he charged, lance drawn, at windmills, believing them giants, from a story by Cervantes published in 1604.

The machinations of some in federal politics in disrupting the E.T.S. passage to Copenhagen, this month, may well be described as 'Quixotic.' There are windmills in Denmark, but ones for generating electricity - whose blade like arms are too high for any knight's barbed attack. The diminishing glacial reserves are evidence of change. Theologically, change is what differentiates the creature from the creator God, who, is without change - a principle taught by the 4th century St Augustine. From the time the first human pair were driven from the Garden of Eden, the Biblical record links climatic change to human behavior - cause and effect supported by anthropology and archaeology. As stewards of the environment, every effort ought to be explored by nations towards ecological care of Earth. Despite our best efforts however, the created order will continue to wear out as taught by Jesus, recorded by St Luke, "There will be signs in the sun, the moon, and the stars, and on earth distress among the nations confused by the roaring of the sea and the waves." This cosmic change is not doom and gloom but a sequel to a reunion in a new creation, for, "When these things begin to take place, stand up and raise your heads, because your redemption is drawing near," said Jesus.

Stories of Crystal Springs told among the peppermints

Chris and Barbara Burnett arrived at Crystal Springs in 1947 with thirty shillings, a rifle and five children.

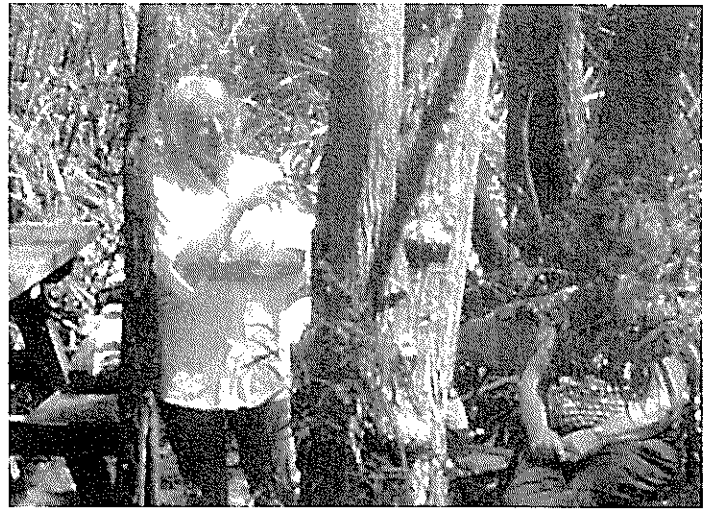

Chris, who came originally from Northcliffe, set off into the coastal bush kangaroo shooting, carrying the skins on his back.

Barbara, one of the Vigus family of Tingledale, began settling the family into the old Nockolds farmhouse on what is now Meredith's property. Later Chris built what became the Crystal Springs roadhouse.

Their story, told by their daughter, now Nancy Hexter, was one of many reminiscences of the Crystal Springs area which emerged when the Walpole Nornalup and Districts Historical Society held its AGM in the camping area there recently.

Nancy told of going up to the drovers' hut and sitting round the campfire, listening to their stories, and Ross Muir and Eddy Liddelow told their own stories of droving mobs of cattle down to the coast in the 1950s.

It was a practice that was unique to this area, Ross said. Most droving in other parts of Australia was to move cattle from one place to another. Here it was part of the grazing pattern, The cattle were brought to the coast every year when feed became scarce in their home paddocks. The Burnetts left Crystal Springs in the '70s and it was later taken over by Tommy and Edna Palmer.

To you and your family

Merry Christmas

From all of us at Walpole Agency best wishes for the festive season and thank you for your loyalty and support.
